

Figure 5A.-- Structural geology of the Deep Creek area as interpreted by structural form lines. The form lines are lineal representation of bedding planes without corrections for topography. Relative steepness of structural slope is indicated by spacing of form lines: the closer the lines, the steeper the slope. Some of the more interpretive structures not shown on figure 2.